

Contents

Opinion and Analysis

- 7 The Art of Difficult Dialogue
Leonidas Donskis
The art of dialogue is always difficult. The ability to listen and hear is accompanied by a sincere wish to check one's own premises and to examine one's own life. An unexamined life is not worth living, while an un-lived life is not worth examining.
- 21 Katyn before the European Court of Human Rights
Ireneusz Kamiński
- 28 A Festival of Jewish (Polish) Culture
Janusz Makuch
- 37 Political Change and the Performing Arts in Central and Eastern Europe
Géza Kovács
The performing arts have been an essential part of the whirlwind of historic change in Central and Eastern Europe. While they have not been completely removed from the social and political change in Western Europe and America, the difference in how much they have been involved is remarkable.
- 44 Shadows of Joseph Stalin
Ana Dabrundashvili
- 50 The Spectre of Berehynia
Harriet Salem
- 61 Obama's Wasted Potential?
Filip Mazurczak
Despite being widely revered across Europe, US President Barack Obama's Foreign Policy in Central and Eastern Europe is much less engaged than his predecessor. As a result, both the United States and the region are losing out on the potential for strong economic cooperation and democracy promotion.
- 68 V4 Upgrade: Polish presidency in the Visegrad Group
Wojciech Przybylski
- 75 Religion in Russia's Foreign Policy
Alicja Curanović
Religious diplomacy allows a state to use certain aspects of religion and religious symbols in international affairs. The instrumentalisation of religion for political aims has a long and rich tradition in Russia, which is evidenced in Russia's foreign policy today.
- 82 Armenia as a Strategic Satellite of Russia in the South Caucasus
Ilgar Gurbanov
- 90 A Bull in a China Shop
Kamil Catus
- 96 All Quiet on the Southern Front?
Ida Orzechowska
Fourteen years after the 1999 NATO bombings of the Balkans, the political leaders in Belgrade and Pristina are heading towards the normalisation of mutual relations and integration with the European Union. The April 19th 2013 agreement leaves the past behind and opens a new chapter in Balkan history.
- 104 Fearing the East? European immigration in the UK
Kelly Hignett

Interviews

- 112 Filling in the Gaps of Democracy
A conversation with Jerzy Pomianowski
“Having this role of a gap filler means that the European Endowment for Democracy can be flexible and even a little risky with our funding choices. If there is a group that an EU financial instrument cannot provide funding for, the Endowment will find a way to provide such support.”
- 122 Rebranding the Baltics
A conversation with Andres Kasekamp

Reports

- 128 The Dumping Ground of the Steppe
Zbigniew Rokita
Kazakhstan is a country with a history of mixed nationalities and exemplifies the Soviet ethnic experiment. But it is also a country that has inherited the demographic mess left by the Soviet Empire.
- 138 Three Hours on a Train to Ternopil
Annabelle Chapman

History

- 142 Songs of Freedom
Jonathan Bousfield
It is 25 years since the Estonian artists and activist Heinz Valk coined the phrase “Singing Revolution” to describe the wave of patriotic gatherings sweeping the country, which then spread to the other Baltic republics. Of all the things that happened during the Singing Revolution, however, it is the singing that is the least remembered.
- 149 A Nation of Cossacks
Roman Kabachiy

People, Ideas, Inspiration

- 155 “Give me, oh God, a hard life, but a beautiful, rich and exalted one”
Paweł Śpiewak
A portrait of Janusz Korczak
- 162 Who is Doing Jewishness in Poland?
Annamaria Orla-Bukowska and Krzysztof Tomanek
- 172 Stranger than Fiction
Łukasz Wojtusik

Books and Reviews

- 178 Josh Black – Back in the USSR
On Leslie Woodhead’s How The Beatles Rocked the Kremlin. The untold story of a noisy revolution.
- 181 Annabelle Chapman – A Journey to Russia’s Heartland
On Oliver Bullough’s The Last Man in Russia: And The Struggle To Save A Dying Nation
- 183 Alex Gabuev – Watching the Throne
On Ben Judah’s Fragile Empire: How Russia Fell In and Out of Love with Vladimir Putin
- 185 Daniel Wańczyk – Listening to the Russian Soul (from the laptop)
On Anton Ponizovsky’s Обращение в слух (I Am All Ears)
- 188 Zośka Papużańska – Homo Ludens
On Jerzy Pilch’s Wiele demonów (Many Demons)
- 191 Dorota Sieroń-Gałusek – Rethinking Heritage, the Polish lesson
On Monika Murzyn-Kupisz’s Dziedzictwo kulturowe a rozwój lokalny (Cultural Heritage and Local Development)
- 193 Maia Lazar – A Hungarian Lost to the 20th Century
On the Exhibition The Way We Are. Cartoons and Prints of József Faragó (1866-1906)